Many children wish for a pet of some sort. For the young Corey, he stumbled upon the world's first aritificial intelligence: one capable of building and merging with equally dangerous and whacky machinery. A being simply named for the only sound it can iterate: "Meep!"

While insanely cool as a new best friend, Meep's creator Dr. Terrask is not amused, and will do anything to get his 'unstable prototype' back. Now Corey, along wtih his adoptive family aboard the steamship Pearl's Eye must find a mechanic who can fix Meep's destabilizing power core while staying one step ahead of Terrask and his minions across a steampunk version of1860's Europe.

No one ever said helping new friends was easy...

Episode samples:

Castle Crasher: Having just escaped Terrask, Corey and co rest in a town near Hastings, UK. Meep and Corey learn a bit more about their abilities, and helps repair an old water mill for the locals. Unfortunately, Terrask sends one of his mercenaries after them, and their battle destroys a lot of Hastings Castle.

The Carnival: The crew of the Pearl's eye flies through Venice during the Carnival of Venice, which finally gives Corey and Meep the chance to explore. The only problem? Dr. Terrask is the guest of honor at the festival.

Ear of the Storm: A thunderclap deafens Meep and Corey during a major thunderstorm. With Meep out of power, Corey must find a way back to the ship without alerting Terrask's spies.
